"This riveting collection of reviews and recollections puts Ev Rogers in the chair across from you and brings his infectious pursuit of science that matters irresistibly back to life."

—C Tracy Orleans, Distinguished Fellow and Senior Scientist, Robert Wood Johnson Foundation

"This volume in honor of Everett Rogers contains wonderful articles by many academic stars. Each contributes greatly to the broad field of innovation diffusion studies—a field that greatly enriches us all. Ev would be proud."

—Eric von Hippel, Professor, MIT Sloan School of Management

"Singhal and Dearing honor Rogers' intellectual legacy through this brilliant compilation of writings from collaborators and contemporaries on topics central to their mentor's work."

—Jane T Bertrand, Professor, Johns Hopkins University

This collection of 10 original essays honors the intellectual legacy of Professor Everett M Rogers (1931-2004), a pioneering and distinguished teacher-scholar of diffusion of innovations, communication networks, and social change. Well-known colleagues and contemporaries write on topics that not only piqued Rogers's curiosity, but to which he made seminal and lasting contributions.

Overall, this book demonstrates the diversity of Rogers' contributions to the fields of communication science, marketing, organizational change, sociology, and social psychology. Each essay illustrates some of his insights in practice. Together they add up to a stimulating picture of approaches which are effective across disciplines, and which will serve as a starting point for future scholarship and practice.
